Challenges and Current Status:

Despite the establishment of these offices and companies, they have not yet been fully activated to generate income from research, industry, and commerce. This indicates:

Establishment Phase: The offices are still in their early stages and are working on:

- Building human and technical capacities
- Developing marketing strategies
- Creating a network of relationships with the private sector
- Providing initial funding and necessary infrastructure

Future Opportunities:

- Great potential for generating sustainable research income
- Creating job opportunities for graduates and researchers
- Enhancing integration between education, research, and application
